LEGAL AID SA AMENDS MEANS TEST, WIDENING ACCESS TO LEGAL SERVICES

The Legal Aid South Africa (Legal Aid SA) Means Test, used to determine if applicants qualify for legal aid, has been revised upwards to cater for increases in the Consumer Price Index. This will enable access to legal services to a wider group of people.

The changes come into effect on 1 April 2022.

Below is a summary of the new Means Test threshold. Legal Aid SA considers what applicants earn, after tax, and own:

1. Applications for legal aid in criminal/civil cases – applicants must earn less than R7,700 per month.
2. Applications for legal aid in civil cases where the applicant is a member of a household – applicants must earn less than R8,400 per month.
3. If an applicant owns movable assets, they must not be worth more than R141,900.
4. If an applicant owns immovable assets, they must not be worth more than R665,800.

In criminal cases, children continue to automatically qualify for legal aid and do not have to take the Means Test. If it is a civil case, the family of the child will need to take and pass the Means Test.

Legal Aid SA looks forward to championing the rights of even more persons to access justice through the provision of independent, accessible and quality legal aid services in criminal and civil legal matters, at no cost.
